

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE – April 15, 2024

Empowering Communities for a Sustainable Future: NACTR Launches Community Toolkit

Toronto, Ontario – The National Association for Charitable Textile Recycling (NACTR) is proud to announce the launch of its latest initiative: the Community Toolkit - A Best Practices Toolkit for Community-Led Textile Reuse. This comprehensive toolkit is designed to empower communities across Canada to spearhead transformative projects and champion a greener, more sustainable future through textile reuse initiatives.

For more information and to download the Community Toolkit, please visit: <https://nactr.ca/toolkit-for-community-led-textile-reuse/>

The consumption of textiles and household goods is a significant contributor to global greenhouse gas emissions. However, citizens across Canada are igniting change by supporting innovative community-based initiatives such as free markets, clothing swaps, and yard sales. The Community Toolkit provides community leaders with the knowledge and resources needed to establish and expand successful textile reuse initiatives, thus reducing landfill waste and greenhouse gas emissions, building vibrant communities through collaborative action, and supporting charities and social causes.

"The Community Toolkit represents our commitment to supporting grassroots efforts in promoting sustainability and community engagement," said NACTR President, Tonny Colyn. "We believe that by empowering communities to take action, we can collectively create a brighter, more sustainable future for all."

The National Association for Charitable Textile Recycling (NACTR) is dedicated to promoting sustainability and community engagement through textile reuse initiatives. NACTR supports grassroots efforts and provides resources to empower communities across Canada to create a brighter, more sustainable future.

Learn more at www.nactr.ca